

Center for Creative Change

presents the second lecture in a series on GLOBAL ISSUES AND PERSPECTIVES

Reason for hope: Grassroots initiatives for social and environmental progress

Mr. Dubois served as international coordinator for Earth Day in both 1990 and 2000. Earth Day 2000 engaged 200 million people in 184 countries in activities to heal our planet.

His extensive experience with nongovernmental organizations includes international work with groups in environmental, economic and social justice projects and campaigns. He co-founded and directed International Rivers Network and Friends of the River as part of his work to help develop socially, environmentally and economically sustainable water policy and practices.

featuring Mark Dubois, organizer of the first international Earth Day

Wed., April 7, 7-9 p.m.

Antioch campus, room 100

Antioch University, 2326 Sixth Ave., Seattle

For more information, contact Debra Alderman in the Antioch Center for Creative Change at (206) 268-4906 or dalderman@antiochsea.edu.

antioch

University Seattle